LOS ANGELES — On the eve of the most important Super Tuesday of the Democratic primary, Hillary Clinton's well-documented email woes took a turn for the ... entertaining.

HILLARY'S EMAIL ADVENTURE, the the latest iPhone game from KevCol Labs LLC, is now available for FREE in the iOS App Store.

The set-up:

Rocked by scandal just as the White House seemed within her grasp, Hillary Clinton gets an urgent 3 a.m. text message from a political lackey: "Big Trouble, Boss! Bad guys are wiping your email server"

With that — and a quick detour through the NSA Shrink Ray —Hillary is off on a daring quest to retrieve as many classified files as possible from her (now-impounded) email server.

But she better be careful. The "bad guys" may be planning to wipe more than a hard drive.

Players step into the nitro-boosted shoes of the presidential hopeful, as she is miniaturized and rocketed through the innards of her homebrew server on a madcap mission to save her legacy.

Featuring uncredited cameos by political insiders, Hillary's Email Adventure is sure to delight politicos. And everyone (even the lowest-information voters) will love the game's eye-popping pyrotechnics, headphone-rattling soundtrack and accelerometer-driven gameplay.

The game also features social tools that let users share their score — and Hillary's reaction — on Twitter, Facebook and via SMS.

Hillary's Email Adventure is the latest game in the 2016 Candidate Clash series, following up on Product Hunt's game of the day, CANDIDATE CLASH PRIMARIES (f.k.a. POTUSpalooza.)
